Emergency Department Serves Patient and Family

Beatriz Trevino, CNA, CCA

Beatriz Trevino joined the hospital in June 2017 to take on the challenging experiences an emergency department offers. She worked the prior two years as a lab and x-ray technician in an Ardmore clinic.

Trevino holds an associate's degree in applied science from Murray State College and also is certified in nurse assisting and chiropractic care assisting. In the ER, she is the registration and billing specialist. She assists the ER nurses and physician assistants, and comforts and explains the care and next steps to family members of the patient.

"When I come to work I feel like I am coming to be with a family of coworkers. Everyone takes care of their responsibilities and we support each other. We have some very satisfying 'group moments' when a life is saved," Trevino said.

Lee Ann Hicks, EMT

While Lee Ann Hicks was teaching second and third graders, emergency response was primarily an "after-school" interest. For 20 years as a medical responder for the Falconhead VFD, she would be first on the scene to render pre-transport aid to area patients awaiting the arrival of an ambulance.

In June 2017, the former District Teacher of the Year at Turner Public Schools and former Elementary Teacher of the Year at Thackerville Schools, joined the hospital's emergency department full-time.

She is a patient registrar and billing specialist, and assists the clinical staff and those in the waiting room. "I try to give family members the confidence that the patient is where they need to be and there are people here to help them," Hicks said. To many former students and community members she encounters hers is a familiar face and a reassuring voice.
