'Clean Machines' Fight Bacteria and Viruses

Housekeepers Patricia Salazar and Gabina Bustos program the large-room Clorox ultraviolet-light machine to kill bacteria and viruses in emergency rooms (left), hospital rooms, therapy building, and public waiting areas. Treatments take 15 minutes.

The Germaway UV-C light applicator is deployed in clinic pods (right), the back of the ambulances, and small rooms throughout the facilities. The goal is to destroy harmful microorganisms that might remain on surfaces after routine room and facility sanitizing.
